Winners, Losers, and the Wisdom of God

We're back in the National Football League playoffs, that short championship season that ends this Sunday in Santa Clara, California. Unlike the Fourth of July or Thanksgiving, Super Bowl Sunday is truly America's civic high holy day – the one moment each year when we all come together in a vast liturgical celebration of what we most long to be: winners. I spend the two weeks preceding the game listening to sports talk radio or perusing online analyses of the contest. And on the day itself, I tune in to watch nearly the whole broadcast, including the extensive pre-game coverage. Read more...

PIT Count Snapshot Can't Capture a Year-Round Crisis – By Invisible People

John Berry, SVdP National President, was recently interviewed by Invisible People, a nonprofit news and advocacy site devoted to homelessness and affordable housing, on the annual Point-in-Time (PIT) Count that's mandated by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. UPDATE: SVDP NATIONAL DEVELOPMENT CONFERENCE

We are looking forward to SVdP's very first National Development Conference where Vincentians, volunteers, and staff will come together April 14-15, 2026, at the Marriott St. Louis West Hotel to learn and expand their expertise about grant writing, fundraising, communications, and donor engagement. Seats have filled up quickly for this working conference that requires 100% attendance at the entire meeting. There is no cost to attend, other than your own transportation to and from St. Louis.

While we are currently full, we have begun a waitlist. We have a few approvals pending and may expand the headcount by a handful of added people.
